WANT TO REALLY GET AWAY FROM IT ALL?

LOSE YOURSELF

THESE RESORTS AROUND THE WORLD WILL HELP YOU DO IT

By Sara Perez Webber

Enough of coaches, practice, interviews, even games. Your only desire is to lose yourself in a different place, away from the life you know. The resorts profiled here can help you do just that. They'll transport you to other worlds, help the real one fade away for awhile, and grant you as much seclusion as you want. A stay at one of these tranquil havens will help you get your game back.

Villas Del Mar, Los Cabos, Mexico

New Jersey Nets guard Jason Kidd is well known for his decision-making abilities on the court. When he visited Villas Del Mar with his family, however, he dreaded having to decide when to leave—confirmation enough that this hot property should be on your must-visit list.

Located at the southern tip of Mexico's Baja Peninsula, where the desert and mountains meet the Sea of Cortez, Los Cabos is renowned for its golden beaches, blue waters and luxurious hotels. And now the area is known for the world-class vacation home community of Villas Del Mar, which has attracted the likes of Robert DeNiro, John Travolta and Bono. The resort is nestled along a two-mile stretch of pristine beach, adjacent to the exclusive One&Only Palmilla Hotel. As such, Villas Del Mar offers an unequalled pairing: the comforts of a luxury vacation home along with the services and amenities of a neighboring five-star hotel.

Ownership within this private and exclusive community is limited (available homes are priced from $2,250,000 to $8,000,000), and there's a rental program with rates starting at $2,000 per night for a one-bedroom, ocean-view casita. Guests can take advantage of the resort's outstanding amenities, including Palmilla's 27-hole Jack Nicklaus championship golf course, world-renowned restaurants, spa facilities, as well as private butlers and personal chefs attending to the thoughtfully appointed villas. You may like it so much you'll decide to buy yourself a piece of heaven, as the 100-plus home owners who return time and time again to this seaside paradise already have.

For rates and information about Villas Del Mar's exclusive rental program, call 866-845-5277, or visit www.villasmarketing.com.
